Sugarcane stalks invade city footpaths

Mysuru, Jan. 13 (RK&SD)- Makara Sankranti is celebrated all across Karnataka State in the month of January to mark the first day when the sun is transiting into the Capricorn, also known as Makara, tenth sign of the Zodiac. Sankranti festival also marks the end of the month when the winter solstice, which is referred to as the darkest night of the year, happens. As per Hindu tradition, Makara Sankranti also marks the beginning of Uttarayana, a six-month auspicious period.

As the city is all geared up to kickstart the festive vibes in New Year, residents are enthusiastically shopping for flowers, fruits, jaggery, sesame and other ingredients for making Ellu-Bella. In particular, sugarcane sellers who have a busy day on the eve of Sankranti have started doing roaring business on major footpaths near J.K. Grounds, Agrahara Circle, Surya Bakery Circle in Hebbal, Matrumandali Circle in VV Mohalla, Vivekananda Circle in Srirampura and other busy places in city.

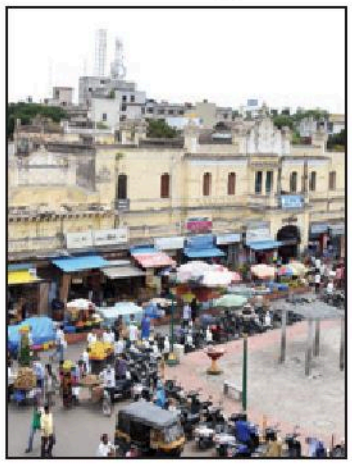
Devaraja Market Demolition

Court gives clearance



Devaraja Market

Lansdowne Building

Mysuru, Jan. 13 (US)- The Court has given clearance to Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) to demolish and rebuild the heritage Devaraja Market and Lansdowne Building.

Disclosing this to the media recently, MCC Commissioner Gurudatta Hegde said that the traders of Devaraja Market had moved the Court against the proposed demolition but the Court has instructed MCC to provide an alternative arrangement to the traders. The Court while giving the go ahead for the demolition, it instructed the MCC to rebuild the structure by retaining its heritage parameters.

He further said that an Expert Committee from Chennai had inspected the Market and confirming its dilapidated state, had also suggested demolition.

Gurudatta Hegde recalled that a portion of Devaraja Market had collapsed in August 2016 and added that a meeting was held at MCC Council where a decision was taken to demolish the market building and reconstruct it.

He said that a meeting of traders and Corporators would be conducted soon to chalk out the action plan for the reconstruction of a new Devaraja Market.

He added that a Committee of experts would be constituted for reconstruction of Lansdowne building and arrive at a decision.

Distraught Democracy

Happenings being reported by the media across the world, particularly heated exchanges among heads of their respective countries, protest demonstrations marked by anger by various outfits including youth at large as well as students, criminal acts taking lives of innocent people and so on don't seem to be biased with respect to different regions. The ongoing road shows across all parts of the country with massive participation of virtually all sections of the population, both opposing many actions of the Government and supporting the measures have drawn world attention, smearing the image of the world's largest Democracy black, impacting inter-country trade as well as relationships. The year 2019, which saw agitations by people of different countries including India for different causes prompting commentators observing the goings on to describe the year as the year of the street protester. To be fair in passing remarks about the agitating masses, one may be permitted to say that not all causes were unjustified, although the option of resolving the differences without coming on the streets doesn't seem to have found favour in the camps of the protesting masses.

Marshalling the people in large numbers to come on a common platform to stage protest as well as support to Government's actions, both on strong grounds, demands and portrays the organising ability of various outfits, a capacity that can be channelised for constructive programmes of the Government, a point that has been overlooked by the country's leadership of the agitating masses.

The classical definition of (India's) Democracy as rule by the people, of the people, for the people may have to be modified as a setup by distraught people, of distraught people, for distraught and other sections of the population, going by the unstoppable road-bound demonstrations engulfing millions of the land's population. As seen by seasoned observers of the ambience in the country's open space, the current protests have mostly not yet taken radical form, except in some isolated pockets, which are under close scrutiny by the country's law-keeping machinery.

Both the agitating side and the top brass in the incumbent Government at the Centre may be standing on prestige, the former party to soften their outlook to the key issues and the latter to roll back the measures, despite the approval of the country's Parliament. In the light of the volatile state of the pasture by some countries that matter to the stable relationship, it is prudent not to fritter away the energies of people mainly to register the distraught stand.

"Preschool Picasso" takes art world by storm

Moscow: Mikail Akar, a seven-year-old boy from Germany is already a well-known name in the art world and his paintings are selling for thousands of dollars all over the world. He has already earned the nickname "Preschool Picasso". Mikail's talent for painting was discovered by mistake, three years ago. His parents bought him a canvas and some handprint paint and let him get creative with them. Mikhail did such a good job with his first canvas that his father thought his wife had painted it.

Last month, during a presentation of the young artist's work at a private gallery in Berlin, one visitor declared herself speechless that the artist was just a child getting ready for his first year of school, adding that the balance and harmony of the composition, were uncharacteristic for a 7-year-old painter.

The wine glass you'll ever need

Seoul: If you don't want to break the one-glass-a-day rule, you can now get a giant glass that you can fill with six and a half bottles of wine. Simply named Large Wine Glass/Large Beer Glass, the world's best wine glass was recently added as a purchasable item by popular South Korean online shop G-Market. It holds up to 6,500 ml, and sells for just 72,750 won ($63). Apparently, it can be used for both wine and beer, although this is clearly not a beer glass.

Unfortunately for wine lovers outside South Korea, G-Market doesn't ship the giant wine glass outside South Korea, but let's hope it inspires western novelty shops to offer something similar in the near future.

Really...?

- India never invaded any country in her last 1,00,000 years of history.
- The name 'India' is derived from the River Indus, the valleys around which were the home of the early settlers. The Aryan worshippers referred to the river Indus as the Sindhu.
- The Persian invaders converted it into Hindu. The name 'Hindustan' combines Sindhu and Hindu and thus refers to the land of the Hindus.

Two held in Gundlupet, Gonikoppal for links with terror operatives

Chamarajanagar, Jan. 13- In a major breakthrough, the Internal Security Division (ISD), Anti-Terrorist Squad (ATS) and the Chamarajanagar District Police, in a joint operation on Saturday, arrested a man in Gundlupet for his alleged links with terror operatives in Kerala.

The Police team, which also held a Madrasa Moulvi on charges of giving shelter to the terror suspect, was later released after questioning, it is learnt. The arrested suspect, who has been identified as Mahaboob Pasha, is said to be a Al-Badr activist.

The ATS and ISD had tracked the movement of the suspect and his phone calls, before he was picked up from a Madrasa on Gundlupet-Terakanambi road. The Police who raided the Madrasa, took Mahaboob Pasha and the Madrasa Moulvi to an undisclosed location, where they were interrogated for hours on Saturday. However, the Police let off the Moulvi after severe questioning, it is learnt.

The raid was conducted after it was established that the suspect was in touch with terror operatives from Kerala. He has been taken to Bengaluru for further interrogation, according to Police sources, which also said that both Pasha and the Moulvi were known faces in Gundlupet and were under the Police radar for the past few weeks. The arrest was made on the basis of details shared by other suspects held in Bengaluru and is a spinoff of the investigations and arrests made in connection with the murder of a Sub-Inspector of Tamil Nadu Police on Kerala-Tamil Nadu border on Jan.8, the sources added.

One more arrested in Gonikoppal

Meanwhile, the ATS, which has continued its crackdown on terror and other subversive activities, has arrested a man from Gonikoppal in Virajpet taluk of Kodagu district on charges of extending financial help to a group of Terror suspects operating in Bengaluru and other States.

Based on the information provided by alleged Jihadi gang members who were arrested in Bengaluru last week, the ATS is said to have picked up the man from Gonikoppal three days back and taken him to Bengaluru for further questioning on his alleged links with the Jihadi terror group, which during interrogation, reportedly confessed to have planned to organise clandestine terror camps along the Karnataka-Kerala border in South Kodagu.

Public Address System goes mute at Circles & Signals

Sir,

With a lot of fanfare the Public Address (PA) system was introduced in a few places where traffic signals are installed. Initially for a few days both Traffic Police and Home Guards used to address the offenders. Now the initial enthusiasm has died and things are back to square one.

Several thousand of tax-payers money has been spent to install such a system. If it is not put to proper use, who is to blame?

Earlier also digital cameras, Tiger motor-cycles, Innova cars etc., were provided to regulate traffic but all of them have suddenly vanished. Who is accountable for the lapse? Here and there a few patrol vehicles are seen, specially in the evenings near some of the road-side eateries but the traffic chaos continues.

Now that Traffic Awareness Week is on, I request the City Police Commissioner to bring back the system seriously to put an end to avoidable accidents and bring to book serial offenders.

Strict orders should be issued to officials manning Circles and Traffic junctions, who are more often seen standing in a corner either on mobile phones or chatting with friends. The same applies to Home Guards who are posted for similar duties.

Why only lawyers can understand Legal Language ?

By Susheela Srinivasan and Dr. B. Shakira Jabeen

English in legal documents in India is so unique that it goes by special nomenclatures — legal parlance, legal English, legalese, etc. This form of language is used in the Courts, legal documents, rules, bye-laws, judgments, Bills, Acts and amendments. A lawyer has to read and interpret it for layman. At what point does the language of law lose contact with common speech? What is it that makes the language of law difficult to comprehend?

Answers to these questions point at certain linguistic aspects used in legal writings. Vocabulary, syntax and semantics make the language of law different. The vocabulary used in legal writings is heavily borrowed from Latin and French languages as Latin was the language of administration and Law in England and French was the Court language.

British educated codifiers in India who drafted the statutes and legal forms borrowed the already existing terminology. Archaism, use of loan words, jargon and use of usual words with unusual meaning and doublets and triplets are the vocabulary features that make comprehension of legal documents difficult. Complicated sentence structures make the language of law quaint.

Archaism is use of outdated words. Modern English has done away with words from Old and Middle English which continue to be used in Theology and Law. Use of such words adds to the difficulty in understanding a piece of writing. Words like heretofore, hereinafter, wherein, aforesaid and notwithstanding are some of the examples of archaic expressions which are part of legal writing.

Loan words are words borrowed from other languages. The need for these arose as English and French languages were considered vulgar and deficient in logical expressions. Latin was the language of Law in England till 1066. Thereafter a variety of Latin known as 'Low Latin' containing Latinised English and French was used in courts till the Fourteenth Century. This explains the occurrence of Latin and French words in Indian legal documents written in English. A few of such Latin words are — 'a priori' meaning previous contentions, 'prima facie' meaning a case at first sight', 'habeas corpus' meaning a writ to obtain the release of someone unlawfully detained, etc. Words borrowed from French have been so assimilated into legal parlance that they appear to be English like felony, larceny, covenant, battery, etc.

Jargon is words which are used exclusively in a special area. These are words particular to a subject. A word in general can have more than one meaning. But in law these jargons have only one meaning that cannot be disputed. For example, the jargon 'citation' means 'quoting a decided case', 'negotiable instrument' means 'all rights that can be transferred simply by delivery' such as cheques. These words have come to be recognised as part of legal register.

Words with unusual meaning are familiar words, used in legal expression with unfamiliar meanings. The general meaning of these words is different from its legal meaning. The word 'access' means 'a right granted to a parent to visit his/her child'. Similarly, 'conveyance' means 'a document transferring a free hold interest in land after sale', 'hearing in camera' means 'hearing a case in private', 'keeping a disorderly house' means 'the offence of operating a brothel' and 'sleeping partner' is 'a partner who assumes no responsibility for running a business'.

Doublets and triplets are overuse of synonyms. This feature is added to make things doubly sure of what it means. 'Hired, engaged and employed', 'destroy, damage and defile', 'signed, sealed and delivered' are some of the examples of the use of multiple synonyms for emphasis. Lawyers defend the use of such synonyms on the ground that they are motivated by the need to be precise. However, critics attribute this to ancient legal practitioners who were paid by the length of the documents.

These vocabulary features by themselves don't make a piece of writing difficult to comprehend. The syntax of legal writings is mind-bogglingly complex. This complexity of syntax is a unique feature of legal documents. There is no end to the number of embedded clauses and modifiers in the sentence.

However, the never-ending length of the sentence is not the only cause of complexity of legal sentence structure. There were multiple efforts to reduce this complexity of syntax. Use of punctuation marks was one such effort. When law was written or codified in Latin in England, the Greek way of indicating pauses with punctuation marks was not followed.

Later when punctuations were introduced, they were not assigned meaning and they were not taken into account for interpretation. Whenever a dispute in meaning based on a punctuation mark was taken to court, it was ruled that punctuation could not be assigned meaning. However, this recent trend hasn't eliminated the presence of very long sentences. The unusual structure with multiple modifiers in unexpected positions confuses the reader.

The language of law seems tedious and verbose. A reader is compelled to consult a legal expert to recover meaning from the syntactic labyrinth. There is a need to make legal language comprehensible to ordinary people. Paraphrased and translated versions which aid comprehension can help people understand the documents though these cannot be used for legal interpretation in a court of law.

Technically, all translations of legal documents will not be considered authoritative texts. There are multiple examples where translation of legal documents poses linguistic hurdles. Translation task can sometimes be baffling. Instead of one single language, if we use three or four languages that a group of friends know and put together the various words, it becomes an interesting task. Probably that's how legal use of English developed.

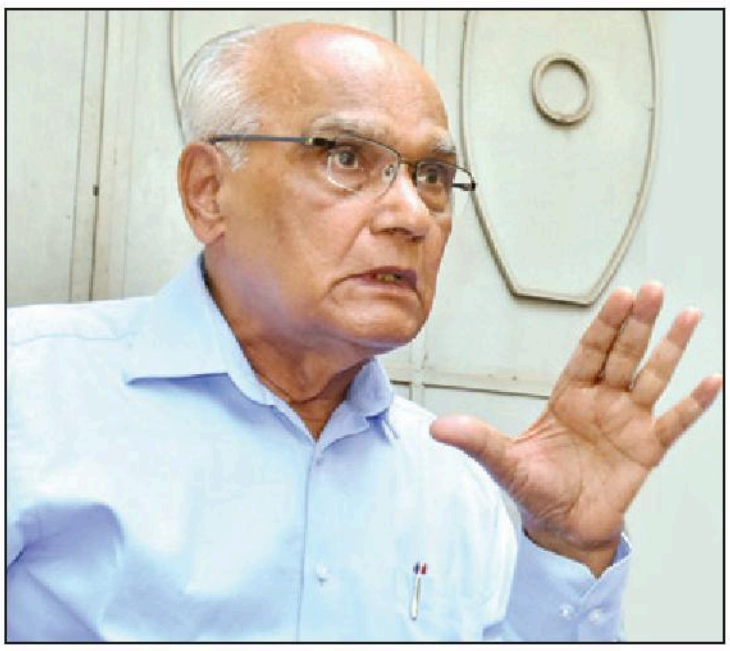
Musings on Dr. S.L. Bhyrappa's defence of CAA — 1

The sea is dangerous and its storms terrible, but these obstacles have never been sufficient reason to remain ashore."

— Ferdinand Magellan, Portuguese explorer (1480-1521)



Celebrated Novelist Dr. S.L. Bhyrappa.

For those who are opposing CAA in our country today, the idea of India is not in believing 'India first.' For them, India seems to come next. Whatever it is, I cannot but remember the architect of our Constitution Dr. B.R. Ambedkar, whose pronouncements have become prophetic when we study the present political situation. In his book "Thoughts on Pakistan", the main refrain was division of India into Hindustan and Pakistan on the presumption that it would bring prosperity, peace and salvation to Hindus. So also for Muslims who wanted a separate religion-based Muslim country — Pakistan

Dr. S.L. Bhyrappa, the renowned Kannada novelist and a philosopher in his own right, is not only a household name in every educated Kannada home but also among those who are given to reading books. After all, most of his novels and other original writings (24 novels and four volumes of literary criticism and books on aesthetics, social issues and culture) have been translated to many Indian and foreign languages.

He lives in our city and occasionally expresses views on issues that concern our society and country. Apparently, looking at the relentless, sometimes violent, agitations by the opposition parties led by Congress against the Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA), he must have felt like Ferdinand Magellan quoted above and called the media to defend the CAA. Dr. Bhyrappa was not ready to remain silent in the face of these protests against a good law made for the good of our country.

Ever since India became independent in 1947, it was the Indian National Congress (which was in the forefront of the Indian Independence Movement) that captured power in the electoral politics and ruled this country continuously for over six decades with brief interregnums.

In times of political difficulties, Congress heavily leaned on the left political parties and communal parties like Muslim League for survival, both at the Centre and States. Seeing this kind of political agenda of the Congress party, Dr. Bhyrappa said in his press meet on last Friday, January 10, 2020 that "the Congress was adopting the divide and rule policy of the British who had created a rift between Hindus and Muslims during the freedom struggle." Surely, Dr. Bhyrappa was not saying anything new. However, it is important for the present day Hindus of India to remember what Dr. Bhyrappa said next.

He accused Jawaharlal Nehru, our first Prime Minister of the Congress, of dividing Hindu society on caste basis in order to consolidate Muslim votes as a guaranteed vote bank. Dr. Bhyrappa, therefore, goes hammer and tongs against Congress and the opposition parties who are now relentlessly engaged in organising protest - demonstrations, many times violent, against the enactment of CAA, which was passed with a comfortable majority both in the Lok Sabha and Rajya Sabha in the spirit of democracy and our Constitution which the opposition parties claim to hold in highest esteem, some even calling it their only holy book.

If the Government has not violated either the Constitution or the principles of democracy in bringing this law, CAA, what is the problem for the Congress and the opposition parties in supporting it? Apparently, the enactment of CAA has rattled the Congress and the left parties politically. Therefore, Dr. Bhyrappa said they were indulging in the current agitation across the country.

All things considered, it is not surprising that at the Congress Working Committee's (CWC) first meeting in 2020, its President Sonia Gandhi has said, "The sinister purpose of the law is clear to every patriotic, tolerant and secular Indian: It is to divide the Indian people on religious lines." (The Hindu, 12.1.2020). Now, will someone please tell the Congress President Sonia Gandhi, who came to India after decades of independence, that the Indian people were divided on religious lines in 1947 and the Congress party was primarily responsible for it?

The Congress and the Opposition parties should also introspect about the reason why the need for CAA arose. Certainly, they are aware of it. So also our Parliament members who otherwise would not have passed the law with such clear majority. Dr. Bhyrappa has spoken about illegal immigrants entering Assam and West Bengal since partition in 1947 and how the Congress was using these immigrants as vote bank even after 1971 war.

Therefore, it is beyond reason and logic to oppose the CAA meant to deal with the illegal immigrants, the helpless minority non-muslim communities, from three Muslim majority non-secular (theocratic) countries who are our neighbours, namely Bangladesh, Pakistan and Afghanistan. The Congress (UPA) and the opposition parties are demanding the repeal of CAA and opposing the National Population Register (NPR) as well as the National Register of Citizens (NRC) at the cost of country's security and development.

Worst scenario is the one where over a hundred former top bureaucrats said there was an "undue obsession" about the illegal immigrants which is causing "deep unease" among Muslims. Well, are they talking about Pakistan Muslims or our Indian Muslims? Please clarify. It is anybody's guess who these bureaucrats were serving while in Government service — the Congress party or the country! They must realise that the Indian Constitution is for Indians of all faiths, Muslims in India included, but not for the Muslims who are illegal immigrants.

For those who are opposing CAA in our country today, the idea of India is not in believing 'India first.' For them, India seems to come next. Whatever it is, I cannot but remember the architect of our Constitution Dr. B.R. Ambedkar at this juncture. Dr. Ambedkar was a visionary whose pronouncements have become prophetic when we study the present political situation in our country. His book "Thoughts on Pakistan" published in 1940 was considered a magnum opus. The main refrain of the book was the division of India into Hindustan and Pakistan on the presumption that it would bring prosperity, peace and salvation to the Hindus. Of course, so also for Muslims who wanted a separate religion-based Muslim country Pakistan.

A sugarcane stalk of 8 feet length is being sold at Rs. 60 in most of the places. While sale of sugarcane has started yesterday evening itself, the roadside sellers are expecting that the business will pick up by tomorrow evening.

Farmers call this as Kari Kabbu or black sugarcane, which is essentially grown by farmers to be sold on the occasion of Sankranti and is different from sugarcane cultivated for production of sugar and jaggery. This Kari Kabbu, which was earlier exclusively grown only in Tamil Nadu during festive season, is now being cultivated in T. Vaastu-Feng Shui & Bio-energetics

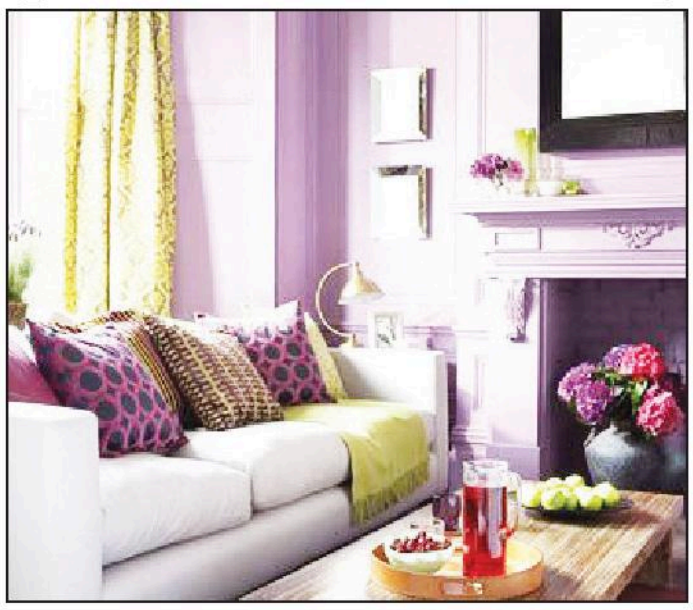
By S.B.S.Surendran
Accredited Master Feng Shui Consultant

Quick fix for Positivity



Feng Shui is an ancient Chinese art and science which was developed over 3,000 years ago. It was designed to help balance energies or Chi within a space in order to promote harmony, good health and fortune. Its principles are based on the Taoist understanding of nature. Good Feng Shui in your home can help you rejuvenate body and mind, recover more rapidly from illnesses, minimise complications and support good health.

These principles can be used to stimulate the flow of love, money, luck and health. Here are eight simple ways that you can align yourself to be in the best energetic position to attract money into your life.

There is a popular misconception that Feng Shui is all about wealth in the sense of prosperity, money, and getting rich. Although it can definitely contribute to improving your finances, wealth has a much larger meaning in Feng Shui and includes relationships, career and health. After all, how can one have a good life and enjoy it without good relationships and good health?

Classical Feng Shui is an ancient art and living science that uses very sophisticated and complex methods to enhance life through energy. It can improve your wealth, relationships, health and longevity.

For example, in Feng Shui it is said that in order to maximise health and well-being, a house must be properly supported in the back, right and left side — support can be in the form of a retaining wall, thick landscaping or a building. For instance, if there is no support on the right-hand side — which is on the right as you look out your front door — it may indicate sickness for the female of the house.

Feng Shui does not mean only the right placement of things for prosperity, but it also means the development of the right attitude in life. According to Feng Shui, you can make more wealth once you learn to live generously. This is because money is a type of energy that has to be made to not only into your life, but also to flow through your life. If you don't have money to share, you can always give your time, appreciation and compassion to others for greater abundance in life. From the practical aspect, one can harmonise the home for positivity, good luck and happiness through simple decor and placement of basic symbolism. Here are two simple basic rules which could be beneficial:

• Colours have the ability to impact our mood and also our energy. Red is a particularly auspicious colour and represents power. Purple and green also hold the vibration of attracting prosperity. The colour hues you choose to decorate with also need to match your personality and the tone you want to create.

• The state of the water in your home mirrors your finance. Hence, dripping or leaking taps, stagnant water around the house or broken fountains are not conducive to prosperity. Water based art work or mirrors that are higher than your nose also not in line with prosperity. Similarly, a mirror or water-based picture should never be hung above the bed.

Advanced Research Centre at Pharmacy College

Minister for Primary and Secondary Education S. Suresh Kumar inaugurated the Advanced Research Centre of Sarada Vilas Pharmacy College in Krishnamurthypuram on Saturday.

Speaking on the occasion, Suresh Kumar opined that education should be meaningful and interestingly indulging so that students do not wait for the last bell of the institution.

He aimed to establish such a situation in all Government Schools so that parents should look forward to admit their children to Government Schools.

He asked students to utilise the facilities and opportunities to excel in career. He said that the new Education Policy is aimed to provide good education for all students to develop an all-round personality.

Interacting later with the students, the Minister observed that quality education was not available to meet the requirements of this competitive world. He opined that lack of professional skill was bringing down the employable factor.

He maintained that education in mother tongue is always effective but regretted that even the poor want their children to study in English medium which is dropping the admission in Government Schools. Hence, he said that Karnataka Public Schools have been opened at Government Schools.

Sanskrit has a scientific background, says Dr. Kasturirangan

Two-day 'Vidyarthi Vigyan Manthan' concludes

Mysuru, Jan.13 (YDS&US)- "Sanskrit, the basis of knowledge, is a scientific language and education should also emphasise on culture," opined Dr. K. Kasturirangan, former Chairman, Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO) and Chairman of the Drafting Committee – National Education Policy.

He was speaking as the chief guest at the valedictory of the two-day State-level camp, 'Vidyarthi Vigyan Manthan,' organised by Swami Vivekananda Youth Movement (SVYM) at the premises of Vivekananda Institute for Leadership Development in Hebbal here yesterday.

Dr. Kasturirangan contended that the language formula in education has a scientific reasoning and added that it covers mother tongue and regional language. He pointed out that children in the age group of 3 to 8 years have a very sharp mind to learn more languages. He maintained that the three-language policy was evolved based on those findings.

Continuing, Dr. Kasturirangan bemoaned that about one crore students discontinue studies every year in the country owing to lack of proper guidance which could be reduced if education is given in mother tongue.

He asserted that curiosity and inquisitiveness are the basic elements needed for a research student.

Replying to a question by a student as to why he preferred ISRO to NASA (National Aeronautics and Space Administration, USA), Kasturirangan recalled that he got an opportunity to work for NASA and simultaneously he got a chance to build ISRO and said that he chose the latter which was a rare challenge.

He pointed out that many Indians work at NASA which is their choice.

SVYM Founder Dr. R. Balasubramaniam, Deputy CEO S. Praveen Kumar, CEO Sunil Bhaskaran, Programme Convenor Dr. Aravind C. Ranade and others were present.

Traffic Police face questions at MGP meeting

Mysuru, Jan.13 (SPN&DM)- Even as City Police are taking a series of measures for finding solutions to traffic woes, the Traffic Police had to face a slew of questions at a general meeting of Mysore Grahakara Parishath (MGP) held at F.K. Irani Auditorium in Ideal Jawa Rotary School premises on JLB Road here on Sunday.

Traffic Police Inspector Shivakumar taking part in an interaction with MGP members, replied to the allegations that the Traffic Police were indiscreet in the implementation of Traffic rules and regulations and this has given rise to certain traffic issues. Maintaining that the Traffic Police have to act according to the circumstances, Shivakumar said that serious complaints on traffic issues will be brought to the notice of the higher authorities. Arguing that traffic personnel cannot be deployed on every road, he underlined the need for the motorists to voluntarily follow traffic rules and regulations and also maintain lane discipline. Replying to another question on why issues such as footpath encroachments, parking problems, road safety etc., have not yet been addressed despite several pleas, Shivakumar said that the co-operation of the public was vital to address these issues. When asked why vehicle checking was limited only to helmetless riding and collecting fines, he said that wearing helmets would save the rider from the risk of death in case of accidents. Replying to a query on the preparedness of the Police for traffic management in the next ten years, he said that road widening works were going on at several places including Irwin Road in the heart of the city, a multi-level parking facility coming up at Town Hall premises and a fly-over has been constructed at Hinkal on Hunsur road, which is expected to ease traffic movement. Also, plans are afoot to build a peripheral road , he added.

Appealing the public to immediately come to the rescue of accident victims without wasting time on taking photographs of the accident, Shivakumar pointed out that Hospitals should give priority for treating accident victims first, before seeking details about the accident.

Suyog Hospital Founder Dr. S.P. Yoganna,MGP members Bhamy V. Shenoy, K.S. Narasimhamurthy, Mahendrababu, Somnath Datta, Dr.T.N. Manjunath, Chetan Vishwanathan and others were present.

'Adarsha Gruhini-2019' award conferred on Shruti Arun

Mysuru, Jan.13 (US)- Naganava Kala Sahitya Vedike had organised a function in city recently which featured a Mahila Kavi Goshti and presentation of 'Adarsha Gruhini- 2019' award to Shruti Arun of Mysuru.

Speaking after presenting the award, journalist Amshi Prasanna Kumar opined that there is an integral bonding between newspapers and literature. He contended that reading habit gives peace of mind an added that the advent of television has resulted in people getting glued to the small screen for tele-serials but felt that reading has declined but not gone extinct. He said that poems have become more popular now than novels. He regretted that several TV serials project women in a negative character but lauded Shruti Arun in being a truly ideal home-maker.

Inaugurating the programme, Jananodaya PU College Principal Srikanta Sharma opined that the field of poetry should not have any gender-bias. He contended that poems should come out naturally like leaves from a growing plant.

He asked young poets not to have any inhibitions and apprehensions as writing improves through effort and perseverance. He said that literature should be life's mirror unlike the language in movies today which is only sound.

About 25 women participated in the Kavi Goshti and rendered poems composed by them.

Writer A. Hemaganga presided. Vedike President Homma Manjunath, Directors A. Sangappa, Devaraj, Kavita, P. Chikkahalli, Sougandhika Jois and Chandrakala were present.

WORD OF THE DAY

Mendacious

Pronunciation: men-DAY-shus.
Meaning: Given to or characterised by deception or falsehood or divergence from absolute truth.
Origin: Mendacious and lying have very similar meanings, but the two are not interchangeable. Mendacious is more formal and literary, suggesting a deception harmless enough to be considered somewhat bland. Lying is more blunt, accusatory, and often confrontational. You might yell, "You lying rat!" in an argument, but you would most likely stick to the more diplomatic, "Aren't you being somewhat mendacious?" in a business meeting. Mendacious can also imply habitual untruthfulness, whereas lying is more likely to be used to identify specific instances of dishonesty.
Example: Students in the class analyse political speeches and learn how to separate exaggerations and mendacious claims from verifiable facts.

THE ODD WORD

Macilent

Lean; excessively thin.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Match made in heaven

Meaning: Usually said when a couple look like they are just perfect for each other; A marriage that is likely to be happy and successful because the two people are very compatible with each other.
Origin: There's a reverse phrase for this is: 'match made in hell' which is said on a marriage that is likely to be doomed, because the couple seem to be unsuited for each other.
Examples: Looks like Michael and Shir are about to get hitched soon, they are really a 'match made in heaven.'
Jules and Nora are a match made in heaven. They love doing things together and cannot bear to be away from each other.
I hope Lily and Tim get married soon. They are really a match made in heaven. My brother and his wife are not only very supportive of each other, but they also have similar interests. They are truly a match made in heaven.
